Update Regarding Coronavirus (COVID-19) and Services at the Sexual Assault Centre

24 March 2020

Ensuring our Centre is a safe and healthy work and healing space is a high priority; as Coronavirus continues to spread throughout the country our Centre will be taking the following actions:

- At this point, the Centre is not open to visitors. If you are in an emergency please contact the appropriate emergency services
- Our counselling services remain available to clients exclusively through distance counselling (video and telephone)
- We will continue to accept intakes and referrals through distance counselling
- Our coordinators are available by phone - 613.545.0762 - however at this time we will not be conducting face-to-face meetings
- Centre and individual staff voicemails are continuing to be checked daily while staff work remotely
- Services, such as accompaniments may be provided in a reduced capacity
- If you are seeking crisis resources please reach out to our crisis and support line at 1.877.544.6424*

For more information about the Sexual Assault Centre Kingston and our efforts to ensure that our Centre remains a healthy work and healing place, please feel free to contact Brea Hutchinson, Executive Director, at director@sackingston.com or by phone at 613.545.0762x3101.
